

JACKMAN WHEEL CO. • OFFICIAL WHEEL COMPANY

SOCIAL GROWTH & SEARCH VISIBILITY

Competitive benchmark, content rules, an SEO standard, and a 90-day plan — for the team that has to execute it.

PREPARED FOR KEVIN FITZGERALD OWNER AUSTIN FITZGERALD VERSION 3 — MERGED

DATE 2026-09-15

Version 3 merges the fact-checked v2 playbook (13 Sep) with the account audit, competitive scan and brand-compliance rules built 14–15 Sep. Where the two disagreed, the disagreement is stated rather than smoothed over — see §10. Numbered markers refer to the source list on the final page.

THE SHORT VERSION

Jackman sits at 760 Instagram followers against competitors between 140,000 and 2.1 million. ^[1,2] You will not out-post them and cannot out-spend them, so don't try. Win on the one thing none of them own — a real California heritage story, told by the people building the wheels, with the customer's truck as the hero.

Then make every post do double duty as a search result. Instagram has fed public professional-account content to Google since 10 July 2025, so a caption is now a landing page. ^[7]

And the account has already proved which way to go. Of eleven Reels, ten sit between 718 and 2,286 views. One is at 11,900 — the only one showing a vehicle in the world.

Section 1 WHERE YOU STAND TODAY

Follower counts read from live profiles 13–15 September 2026 and cross-checked against third-party analytics. ^[1,2]

Follower count is a vanity number, but it sets a realistic ceiling on what a single post can do and tells you which brands are worth studying versus which are simply older.

THE FIELD

ACCOUNT	IG	WHAT THEY ARE ACTUALLY DOING
@jackmanwheels	760	Product beauty shots, heritage graphics and launch teasers. Following 146 — almost no outbound community activity.
@vossen	2.1M	Aspirational street/luxury. Category-best photography; profile organized into shoppable product-line highlights.
@americanforcewheels	749K	Forged-truck flex. Heavy #TeamAFW owner-tagging program. Hoonigan-owned. ^[10,11]
@blackrhinowheels	562K	Overlanding positioning — "Engineered to Explore." Bio drives straight to a dealer locator. Hoonigan-owned. ^[10,11]
@methodracewheels	559K	Race credibility translated to street. Custom Wheel House, acquired by Fox Factory 2023 — the one large competitor not under Hoonigan. ^[12]
@fueloffroad	521K	Volume and lifestyle. Four owned hashtags stacked in the bio for UGC collection. Hoonigan-owned. ^[10,11]
@kmcwheels	260K	Purpose-built utility angle. Bio link points at apparel, not wheels. Hoonigan-owned. ^[10,11]
@racelinewheels	140K	"Family owned since 1996." ^[18] Closest competitor in tone to where Jackman should sit.
@thehoonigans	4.8M	Outside category: an entertainment company that happens to sell parts. Content, not catalog, builds the audience.
@nittotire	550K	Outside category: "Fueled by Enthusiasts." Built around customer builds, not product.
@thebronconation	106K	Outside category: a community, not a brand. 106K followers with nothing to sell.
@yeti	2.3M	Outside category: the gold standard for heritage storytelling where the product is barely visible.

THE CONSOLIDATION POINT NOBODY MENTIONS

Four of the seven wheel brands above — Fuel Off-Road, KMC, Black Rhino and American Force — are all Hoonigan brands, the company formerly known as Wheel Pros.^[10, 11] Roughly 2.1 million combined followers under one roof and one shared content operation. Hoonigan filed Chapter 11 in September 2024 and completed restructuring that December.^[10]

Two consequences. You are not competing against seven independent marketing teams — you are competing against three: Hoonigan, Fox Factory/Method, and Raceline. And a house of four brands under a restructured parent tends to centralize and homogenize its content. Distinctive, human, brand-specific storytelling is exactly where a small independent takes ground.

WHAT THE GAP ACTUALLY MEANS

Three of your four named competitors are 180× to 740× your size, and Vossen nearly 3,000×. That is not a content-quality gap, it's a time gap — Method, KMC and Raceline have been compounding since the 2010s.

The goal for twelve months is not to pass them. It's to become the fastest-growing account in the category and the one enthusiasts recommend, which is winnable from 760.

- 12-month follower target: 25,000–40,000. Aggressive but normal for a relaunched heritage brand with real product shipping.
- More important than followers: reach from non-followers above 60% of total, and sends-per-reach at or above 1%.^[3]
- Own one hashtag (#JackmanWheels) the way Fuel owns #FuelOffroad and American Force owns #TeamAFW. Hashtag ownership doesn't care how old your account is — and it matters more now Instagram caps every post at five.^[8, 9]

THE ACCOUNT HAS ALREADY TOLD YOU WHAT WORKS

Eleven Reels. Ten between 718 and 2,286 views. One at 11,900 — 5.2× the next best and about eleven times the median.

The winner is the only one showing a vehicle in the world. The floor is wheels on a surface and graphics with type on them — including a heritage text card, which matters for $4.

THE ENCOURAGING HALF

A 1,100 median against 760 followers means Instagram is serving you to roughly 145% of your follower count — proportionally more unconnected reach than Method (7%), KMC (15%), Vossen (5%) or Deus (4%). Small new accounts get tested generously.

The machine isn't the problem. You're getting the audition and the material isn't converting it.

FACEBOOK — AUDITED 15 SEPTEMBER

- 23 followers, 1 following, 0 reviews, nothing pinned.
- Every post is stamped "Published by Instagram." A pure mirror — the exact failure mode measured in $2.
- Still on a `profile.php?id=` URL. No vanity handle. Nobody can find, link to or trust a numeric profile.
- A second Facebook page appears to exist. The v2 audit cited `/p/Jackman-Wheels-61560110244171` ^[16]; the page in use is `61590115023694`. Two different IDs. A duplicate page splits audience, splits reviews and confuses search — resolve which is canonical and merge or delete the other.
- NAP conflict. Site legal pages say 15500 Cornet St., Santa Fe Springs, CA 90670. ^[15] Facebook says Austin, TX. ^[16] Conflicting addresses actively suppress local visibility.

Section 2

WHAT EACH COMPETITOR DOES WELL — AND WHERE THEY LEAVE THE DOOR OPEN

Method Race Wheels

Does well: vehicle-segmented merchandising — a shopper looking for Tacoma wheels self-serves in two taps, on the site and on the profile. Race provenance gives every claim credibility. Fox Factory ownership means real budget. ^[12]

Opening: overwhelmingly product-forward and corporate. Very little human presence. Nobody knows who makes a Method wheel.

KMC Wheels

Does well: merch as a membership badge — the bio link points at a T-shirt, not a wheel. A cheap entry point for people who can't afford a set yet.

Opening: lowest follower count of the big off-road players and a generic identity. "Purpose-built wheels for trucks, SUVs, UTVs and racers" could be anyone.

Vossen Wheels

Does well: category-best photography and a profile organized as a shoppable catalog. Every image is a wallpaper.

Opening: a completely different customer. Steal their production standards, not their audience. Note also they organize highlights by product series (HFX, GEN, GNX, VPS) where Method organizes by vehicle — Method's is correct, because a buyer knows their truck and not your model numbers.

Raceline Wheels

Does well: closest to your positioning — family owned since 1996.^[18] Proof an authentic-origin story sells in this category.

Opening: they under-tell it. The heritage is a bio line, not a content pillar. Your story is older, more visual and largely untold — the single biggest opportunity in this document.

Fuel Off-Road, Black Rhino, American Force

Do well: industrial-scale UGC programs. Fuel stacks owned hashtags in the bio. American Force runs #TeamAFW as an owner club. Black Rhino sends bio traffic straight to a dealer locator, converting attention into retail.

Opening: at their scale a customer's build gets reposted and forgotten. You can reply to every comment and DM every person who tags you. For the next two years, being small is a feature.

TWO THINGS THE ENGAGEMENT DATA SHOWS THAT FOLLOWER COUNTS HIDE

FINDING A — FACEBOOK IS UNCLAIMED. ALL FOUR ABANDONED IT IN PLACE.

Reactions on the post sitting at the top of each Facebook page, September 2026:

METHOD 1.4M followers	VOSSEN 1M followers	DEUS 243K followers	KMC 177K followers
16	4	20	18
REACTIONS	REACTIONS	REACTIONS	REACTIONS

Not outliers hunted for — the top post on each page. All four mirror the Instagram post: same asset, same caption, same hour. Page organic reach is 1–6% of followers; Groups reach 20–40% of members. The dealer play in $4 is competing with nobody.

FINDING B — THE PROMO GRAPHIC IS THE FLOOR. EVERY BRAND, EVERY SCALE.

Method, "SWEET DEALS" — 4,536 views against a 3.9M best. 860×

Vossen, "NOW HIRING" — 17.7K against 3.1M. 175×

KMC, Off-Road Expo graphic — 9,713 against 178K.

Jackman, "Est. 1968" card — 1,597 against 11.9K.

Four brands across four orders of magnitude, same result. They all keep making them because a promo calendar demands it. No promo graphics as feed posts — Stories, email and dealer pages only.

WHAT BREAKS OUT INSTEAD

Method's two outliers: "CAN YOUR NON-BEADLOCK WHEELS DO THIS?" at 690K, and a POV reel with a face in frame at 3.9M. Their desert truck photography sits at 25–50K. Both winners are inherently sendable — you forward "can your non-beadlock wheels do this" to the guy whose wheels can't. Note the format: a capability demonstration wearing a challenge hook.

NOBODY IS DOING FITMENT AND FINISH TRUTH

Confirmed across all seven. No finish-in-changing-light content. No brake clearance. No "what it looks like dirty." KMC comes closest and inverts it — "NEW FITMENT — KM733 +35MM" published as a flat text graphic. Right topic, worst possible format.

THE OUTSIDE-CATEGORY LESSON

The Bronco Nation has 106,000 followers and nothing to sell. Nitto built 550,000 around customer builds, not tread patterns. YETI sells coolers with content where the cooler is barely in frame. None of them lead with product — they lead with the identity the product signals, and the product rides along.

One caution on that pattern, from Deus Ex Machina: their Instagram is the weakest of everyone measured (median ~9K on 213K followers, 4%). That isn't failure — they have retail stores, a café, apparel wholesale and twenty years of cultural position, and Instagram is a lookbook for people who already belong. Take their art direction, not their content diet. A relaunching brand that stops showing the product loses the only thing generating sends.

THE POSITIONING TO PLANT A FLAG ON

Every competitor is selling performance. You are the only one who can sell lineage — a wheel brand that was on trucks before most of your customers were born, brought back by people who could have let it die. Nobody can copy that because they don't have it.

Before that goes on a billboard, see $10 — the founding date needs one conversation to settle.

Section 3 HOW INSTAGRAM ACTUALLY RANKS CONTENT IN 2026

If your marketing person reads only one section, make it this one.

SENDS ARE THE TOP SIGNAL

Instagram has shifted weight toward shares — specifically sends per reach, the share of people who saw a post and sent it to someone in DMs. Sends carry several times the distribution weight of a like. Saves rank next, then comments, then likes. [3,4]

Practical effect: stop making posts people like. Make posts people forward to the friend shopping for wheels right now. "Send this to the guy who still runs stock wheels" is not a cheesy CTA — it's the highest-leverage line you can put in a caption.

THE REPOST PENALTY — THE BIGGEST CHANGE OF 2026

On 30 April 2026 Instagram extended its originality rules from Reels to photos and carousels. Someone else's image or clip published from your account without meaningful transformation now loses recommendation eligibility in every format. The reported threshold is around ten reposts in thirty days, past which an account is classified as an aggregator and dropped from recommendations entirely. Original accounts are seeing 40–60% more reach. [19,20]

This hits our category hardest, because reposting customer photos is the default content strategy of the entire wheel industry — including the three brands running "industrial-scale UGC programs" in $2. Most haven't noticed it stopped working.

OPERATING RULE — COLLAB, NEVER REPOST

When an owner posts our wheels, we never screenshot, download or re-upload. We ask them to add us as a Collaborator, or invite them onto our post. A Collab counts as original for both accounts, appears in both grids, serves both follower bases and both interest clusters, and pools engagement into one post instead of splitting it.

Same content, none of the penalty, roughly double the distribution — and Instagram now allows adding a Collaborator after publishing, so it works on content already up. None of the seven competitors appear to be using it.

UGC goes in the grid as a Collab, or it goes in Stories. Stories carry no originality penalty. Written permission either way — a fire emoji is not a license.

WATCH TIME BEATS EVERYTHING ON REELS

- Completion rate and rewatches drive distribution. Maximum length is 3 minutes; under 90 seconds performs best, and 15–30 seconds holds the highest completion rate. [3]

- The first 3 seconds decide the post. Open on motion, a finished truck, or a question — never a logo animation.
- Explore rewards early velocity — how fast engagement arrives in the first hour — more than any other surface.^[3,4]
- Original, native-to-Instagram content outranks anything recycled. Watermarked cross-platform content is excluded from recommendations outright. Remove the watermark, re-edit, re-caption. Never cross-post raw.^[3]

OTHER MECHANICS WORTH KNOWING

- Trial Reels publish only to non-followers for 72 hours, and can be scheduled. At 760 followers there is no reason to ever publish a Reel cold — free market research, and it builds the shortlist for paid later.^[3]
- "Your Algorithm" controls (December 2025) let users pick their Reels topics. Your content has to be unmistakably about a topic — trucks, Jeeps, off-road, classic cars. Vague lifestyle posts get filed nowhere.^[3]
- Stories: post daily, keep a sequence to about five slides. Story replies and DM frequency feed the "closeness" score that decides whether your posts reach that person at all.^[3,4]
- Negative signals are real. Skips, "not interested" taps and immediate scroll-past suppress future reach. A boring post is not neutral — it costs you.^[3]

CADENCE AND TIMING

Buffer's analysis of 9.6 million posts, updated September 2026.^[6] A starting point — override it with your own Insights after 60 days.

GUIDELINE	DETAIL
Feed cadence	3–5 posts per week. Roughly a 12% reach lift at 3–5 versus 1–2. ^[6]
Stories	1–2 per day. Industry convention rather than a finding from Buffer's dataset — a working rule, not a measured number.
Best day	Wednesday strongest overall. Thursday and Tuesday follow. ^[6]
Best slots	Thursday 9:00 a.m., Wednesday 12:00 p.m., Wednesday 6:00 p.m., local audience time. ^[6]
Evenings win	6:00–11:00 p.m. beats mornings most days — which fits a truck audience. ^[6]
Worst days	Friday and Saturday, materially lower across every slot. ^[6]
Caveat	Timing cannot save a weak post. Quality is 90% of the outcome; timing is the last 10%.

FACEBOOK IS A DIFFERENT AUDIENCE, NOT A SECOND SCREEN

Page organic reach is 1–6% of followers; Groups reach 20–40% of members. And for this brand specifically, Facebook skews to the older enthusiast, the vintage and VW audience, and the dealer network — which makes it the one surface where heritage content should lead rather than follow. On Instagram heritage gets routed to vintage audiences and away from someone shopping 6-lug for a Sierra; on Facebook it finds the people who remember the name.

The dealer kit is the Facebook growth engine. Ship four ready-to-post assets a month, captions written, one line left blank for the dealer's own name. One kit to forty dealers is forty local pages reaching forty local buying audiences — reach the brand page cannot buy at any price. In groups, participate as a person with the affiliation disclosed, roughly twenty helpful contributions before one that mentions product. Never link-drop.

Section 4 THE CONTENT SYSTEM

One dedicated marketing person can sustain this. The trick is batching: one shoot day every two weeks produces three to four weeks of posts.

SIX PILLARS

Every post belongs to one. If it doesn't fit a pillar, it doesn't go up. These merge the v2 five-pillar set with the audit's framework — what moved and why is in §10.

PARTNERSHIPS & CUSTOMER BUILDS

JOB: BORROWED REACH

IS	Real customers' trucks and Jeeps on Jackman wheels, plus Nitto, Baja Designs, Skyler House, builders and dealers. The engine of the account — every feature turns an owner into an evangelist and pulls their followers to you.
ALWAYS	A Collab , never a repost. Tag the owner, the shop, the tire brand and the suspension brand — most will reshare, which is free reach from adjacent audiences.
WORKING	Collabs published per month; follower velocity the week after each.

BRANDING — THE WHEEL ON THE TRUCK

JOB: REACH STRANGERS

IS	Our own shoots. The wheel on a vehicle, in real light, in a real place. The truck small in a landscape. Motion, dust, somewhere you'd want to be. One pure beauty shot a week is the allowance, not the norm.
IS NOT	Logo treatments, brand-color graphics, wheels on seamless. "Branding" is the trap word — if it drifts toward identity design it becomes the promo-graphic format that floors at every brand measured, ours included.
WORKING	Sends per reach; unconnected reach as a share of total.

TECHNICAL · MADE

JOB: DIFFERENTIATE

IS	Machining, finishing, QC, tooling, the people — and the named processes those pictures explain: Radial Flow Form™ (R-FF™), Reverse Draft Technology™, Dual Vector Retention™ (DV-RET™), Water Relief Channels, Fixed Cap Orientation.
WHY	Proves the product is real and the company is human, which is exactly what Method and KMC don't show. It's also inherently original footage, so it carries no repost exposure.
LIMITS	These describe how the wheel is made, not how strong it is . No load ratings, no JWL/VIA/SAE/TÜV, nothing implying a rating. ™ on the three marks only, first use — never on Enhanced Bead Retention, Fixed Cap Orientation or Water Relief Channels. R-FF™ copy from the corrected v2 page: porosity closure and fragmented silicon, never grain-fibre language, never a weight percentage, never a comparison that disparages our own cast line.
BEST POST	The smallest one. Fixed Cap Orientation exists so the logo sits level — a brand feature wearing an engineering jacket.

TECHNICAL · PROOF

JOB: REMOVE THE FEAR

IS	Bolt patterns, offset and backspacing explained, brake clearance, tire pairing. 20x9 on a stock-height Gladiator. Matte Bronze at 7am, noon and dusk. Full lock. What it looks like dirty.
WHY SEPARATE	Your buyer has exactly two purchase fears — does it fit, and does the finish look in daylight like it looked on screen. Nobody in the category answers either. Folded into a general Technical pillar this always loses to process explainers, because those feel more like brand building. Highest save rate of anything you post, and the backbone of social SEO.
WORKING	Saves and DMs. Eventually, return rate.

HERITAGE

10% IG · 25% FB

JOB: PREFERENCE

IS	Archive-grade material only — original ads, factory photos, period trucks, the Primo, Dave Deal artwork. Car people archive this, and it sends and saves harder than anything else you own.
IS NOT	A text card asserting a date. Your "Est. 1968" graphic pulled 1,597 views against 11.9K for a real truck outdoors. The rare archival material is the asset; a typeset claim about it is not the same thing and performs like a promo graphic, because that's what it is.
WHERE	Second beat on Instagram, never the lead post of the week — the interest graph routes it to vintage audiences rather than truck buyers. First beat on Facebook, where it outperforms.
LIMITS	No founding year in copy until $10 is settled. Per the August change proposal, keep the family unnamed in consumer copy — "born in a California garage," "the first wheels were flame-cut by hand," "members of the original Jackman family involved."

CREATIVE & CULTURE

JOB: TEST FORMATS

IS	SEMA, events, apparel, California car culture, illustration, format experiments. The connective tissue, and the sanctioned place to fail.
WHY CAP IT	Every system needs somewhere to try things, or experiments leak into the pillars that have jobs. Anything that wins here graduates into a real pillar.

FORMAT MIX PER WEEK

- 2 Reels — one customer build or install, one heritage or shop-floor piece. Your only realistic reach engine at 760 followers. Both start as Trial Reels.
- 1–2 carousels — fitment explainers, before/after, spec breakdowns. Carousels earn saves, and saves rank.
- 1 single image — the hero product shot. The one post per week allowed to be a pure beauty shot.
- Daily Stories — polls, this-or-that finish votes, shipping updates, every tag reshared, "what should we build next."

TEN REPEATABLE FORMATS THAT WORK IN THIS CATEGORY

1. Stock vs. Jackman — same truck, hard cut, no talking. Highest-sending format in the wheel space.
2. "Will it fit?" — one vehicle per post, answered plainly. Pure search fuel and a save magnet.
3. Unbox to mounted in 30 seconds — box, mount, torque, roll-out.
4. Then and now — an original ad or period truck beside the modern equivalent. Your signature format. Nobody can copy it.
5. Owner takeover — a customer narrates their own build in their own voice.
6. Shop floor macro — the wheel being cut. Close, loud, no music bed over the machine noise.
7. Finish poll — three finishes, audience picks, you show the winner on a truck.
8. The spec myth — "offset and backspacing are not the same thing." Educational, saveable, establishes authority.
9. Dealer spotlight — a shop installing Jackmans. Builds the wholesale channel and gives the dealer something to reshare.
10. Wrong wheel, right truck — rubbing, poke, brake-clearance failures and how to avoid them. Enthusiasts cannot scroll past a mistake.

ONE SHOOT DAY, SIX WEEKS OF POSTS

- 3–4 hero stills — Branding
- 1–2 Reels cut from the same footage — Branding
- One finish-in-changing-light sequence — Proof
- One fitment carousel: wheel gap, brake clearance, poke, stance — Proof
- Detail and shop-floor macros — Made
- One dirty-wheel follow-up two weeks later — Proof
- The owner in frame, handle and written permission collected — Partnerships

Section 5

TACTICS BY METRIC

Followers, comments, likes, shares, reach, mentions, engagement and views each have a different lever. Don't chase them with the same post.

METRIC	WHAT MOVES IT
Followers	Reach from non-followers is the only real source: Reels, Explore, Collabs with bigger accounts, hashtag ownership. Also follow back and engage with every customer, dealer and enthusiast in the niche — 146 follows is far too few . Target 800–1,200 curated follows within 90 days, all people who could plausibly buy or repost.
Comments	One specific, low-effort question per post ("17s or 18s on this one?"). Never "thoughts?" Reply to every comment within the first hour — replies count as engagement and pull the post back into circulation. ^[3] Pin the best comment.
Likes	Lowest-value signal now. It follows from reach; don't optimize for it. ^[3]
Shares / sends	The most important number in this document. ^[3,4] Write captions that name a person to send it to. Make posts that settle an argument, answer a fitment question, or make someone say "that's your truck." Heritage archive material and stock-vs-upgraded comparisons send hardest.
Reach	Reels + Explore + Collab posts. Use Collab with every customer whose build you feature — the post lands in both grids and draws from both audiences. The fastest reach lever available to a small account, and it's the only UGC route that survives the originality rule.
Mentions	Print #JackmanWheels on every box insert, hang tag, dealer sheet and email footer. Run a monthly "Jackman Build of the Month" with a real prize. Tag the customer, the shop, the tire brand and the suspension brand in every build post.
Engagement rate	Post less if you must, but never post a weak one. A skipped post suppresses the next one. ^[3] Four strong posts a week beats seven mediocre ones.
Views	Hook in the first 3 seconds, under 90 seconds total, loop-friendly ending, on-screen text from frame one (most viewers watch muted), captions burned in. Test with Trial Reels before committing. ^[3]

HOUSE RULES — THE STANDARD THE TEAM ADHERES TO

Section 6

Non-negotiable. Print them and put them next to the person who posts. Numbered so they can be cited — "that breaks rule 14" should be a sentence anyone here can say.

A · EVERY POST, WITHOUT EXCEPTION

01 Belongs to one of the six pillars.

No orphan posts. One job per post — a post doing two does neither.

02 Front-loads its keywords in the first 125 characters.

That text is now a Google search result, not just a caption.^[7]

03 Names the vehicle: year, make, model, plus wheel model, size and finish.

"J69 Matte Bronze 17x8.5 on a 2022 Tacoma" — not "clean build."

04 Has custom alt text written by a human.

Not Instagram's auto-generated version.^[5]

05 Uses 3–5 specific hashtags — five is the hard platform cap.

Instagram capped posts at five in December 2025, and splitting them between caption and comments gains nothing.^[8,9] Niche and mid-size tags only, never #instagood or #trucks.

06 Includes #JackmanWheels.

Every single post. That is how hashtag ownership gets built.

07 Ends with one concrete ask.

A question, a send prompt, or a save prompt. One, not three.

08 Tags the owner, the shop and the adjacent brands in the photo.

09 Video has burned-in captions and on-screen text from frame one.

10 Gets a first-hour reply pass.

Every comment, every time. On Facebook this is not service, it's distribution — an active thread keeps a post circulating for days.

11 Every Reel starts as a Trial Reel.

At 760 followers there is no reason to publish one cold.

12 UGC in the grid is a Collab with written permission filed.

Screenshot the yes, file it in 04 UGC and Permissions. A fire emoji is not a license.

B · BRAND AND CLAIM RULES — THE LEGAL FLOOR13 No load rating, certification, torque value or strength claim.

No JWL, VIA, SAE or TÜV. None of it is published, and a revived brand cannot absorb one wheel-failure story.

14 Never "lifetime warranty" unqualified, and never imply coverage off-road.

Approved: "Limited lifetime structural warranty and a five-year finish warranty — see full terms." Always linked.

15 ™ on exactly three names, first use only.

Radial Flow Form™ (R-FF™), Reverse Draft Technology™, Dual Vector Retention™ (DV-RET™). Never on Enhanced Bead Retention, Fixed Cap Orientation or Water Relief Channels. Never verb or pluralize a mark.

16 R-FF™ copy comes from the corrected v2 page and nowhere else.

Porosity closure and fragmented silicon. Never grain-fibre language, never a weight percentage, never a comparison that disparages our own cast line.

17 No founding year in consumer copy until $10 is settled.

"California-born" and "born in a California garage" are safe today.

18 Founder first names stay out of consumer copy.

Per the August change proposal. The persuasive detail was never the names — it was flame-cut steel spokes welded to 3/8-inch outer rims, and that survives intact.

19 Classic 68 keeps its name.

Never "J68" in copy, whatever the filenames say.

20 Fitment questions in comments get "confirm with your dealer."

Never a spec from memory, on any platform.

21 Never tag a vehicle manufacturer.

It implies a relationship we don't have.

22 Never grade a finish toward what we wish it looked like.

Finish accuracy is a returns issue, not an aesthetic preference.

23 Bronze type never on a graphite panel.

2.87:1 — it looks fine on a designer's monitor and vanishes on a phone in daylight.

C · NEVER

- ✗ Post a TikTok watermark, or anything that reads as recycled. Watermarked content is excluded from recommendations.^[3]
- ✗ Download and re-upload someone else's photo to the grid. Collab or Stories.^[19, 20]
- ✗ Post a bare product render with no vehicle, no context and no caption beyond the model name.
- ✗ Post a sale or promo graphic as a feed post. Stories, email and dealer pages only.
- ✗ Use stock music over a machining or engine clip. The real sound is the content.
- ✗ Buy followers or use engagement pods. It poisons your audience signal permanently.
- ✗ Leave a customer tag unacknowledged for more than 24 hours.
- ✗ Go dark for more than 3 days without Stories.
- ✗ Post the same asset to both platforms at the same hour with the same caption.

D · PROFILE FIXES TO MAKE THIS WEEK■ Rewrite the Instagram Name field

The bold line, not the handle — to "Jackman Wheels | Truck & Jeep Wheels." Directly searchable inside Instagram and weighted like the handle. The most underused SEO field on the platform.^[5] Already done as of 15 Sep — verify it stuck.

■ Rewrite the bio to lead with product, then heritage, then the owned hashtag

It currently opens "Established: 1968 / Rebirthed: 2026" with no product words at all — an enthusiast searching "truck wheels" will never surface it. Also: "Rebirthed" isn't the line. The brand line is Heritage Reborn.

■ Build vehicle-segmented Story Highlights

FORD · CHEVY/GMC · JEEP · TOYOTA · RAM · HERITAGE · FITMENT · DEALERS. Highlight cover text is searchable and it lets a shopper self-serve. This is Method's structure and it's correct.

☐ Point the bio link at a fitment-first landing page

It currently points at a search-results URL for "J69."

☐ Verify "Allow public photos and videos to appear in search engine results" is ON

Settings → Privacy. Defaults on for professional accounts, but confirm. ^[7]

☒ Claim `facebook.com/JackmanWheels` and resolve the duplicate page

Two page IDs are in circulation. Pick the canonical one, merge or delete the other, then add a vanity URL, pin a post, and enable reviews.

☐ Settle the Santa Fe Springs vs Austin, TX address

Then make every profile, directory listing and schema block match exactly.

E · PLATFORMS BEYOND INSTAGRAM

There is no findable TikTok or YouTube presence. For an off-road audience that's a meaningful hole — YouTube is where purchase research happens and TikTok is where discovery happens.

- TikTok: open the account this month and post the same Reels, re-edited and re-captioned. Reach potential from a standing start is far better than Instagram's.
- YouTube Shorts: same clips again. Shorts are indexed by Google Search, which makes them an SEO asset, not just a social one.
- YouTube long-form: 4–8 minute install and fitment videos. Low volume, high intent, and they rank for years.
- Facebook: the older truck and Jeep owner demographic lives in Groups. Don't spam them — join, help with fitment questions, and let the signature do the work. The dealer kit is the real lever here.

Section 7

SOCIAL SEO

Since 10 July 2025, Instagram lets Google and Bing index public content from professional accounts aged 18+. ^[7] That changed the job. Captions, alt text and on-screen text are now crawlable, which means a Reel about Tacoma fitment can rank in Google alongside forum threads and retailer pages.

THE FIVE FIELDS THAT MATTER

FIELD	HOW TO USE IT
Name field	Searchable inside Instagram and weighted like the handle. ^[5] Category keywords here: "Jackman Wheels Truck & Jeep Wheels."
Caption, first 125 chars	Treat it as a title tag. ^[7] Vehicle + wheel model + size + finish + the problem it solves, in plain language a person would actually type.
Alt text	Write it manually on every image. ^[5] "Matte bronze Jackman J69 17x8.5 wheels on a lifted 2022 Toyota Tacoma." This is indexed metadata.
Hashtags	Five maximum, by platform rule since December 2025. ^[8,9] #JackmanWheels plus vehicle- and fitment-specific tags (#TacomaWheels, #6x139, #JeepJL). Generic tags cost a slot you cannot spare.
On-screen text	Burned-in text gives Instagram and Google more indexable language, and most people watch muted. Always include it. ^[5]

KEYWORD TARGETS FOR CAPTIONS

Write the way people actually search — conversational and fitment-driven:

- "wheels for 2023 F-150", "Tacoma wheels 17 inch", "Jeep Wrangler JL wheels 5x5"
- "6x139.7 bolt pattern wheels", "8x180 wheels for GMC 2500"
- "bronze wheels on a white truck", "best offset for a leveled F-150"
- "classic truck wheels", "vintage style off-road wheels", "retro truck rims"
- "do I need spacers", "will 18s clear my brakes"

Section 8 WEBSITE SEO — FINDINGS AND FIXES

jackmanwheels.com audited directly on 13 September 2026 — page source, structured data, products.json, collections.json and sitemaps.^[14] The foundation is better than most brands at this stage: a well-structured Shopify build, genuinely good title tags and meta descriptions, and ProductGroup schema already on product pages.

WHAT IS ALREADY RIGHT

- Title tags are keyword-led and specific — "J69 Bronze Truck Wheel 17" & 18" | Jackman Wheels" is exactly the pattern that ranks.^[14]
- Meta descriptions name real fitments (5x5, 5x150, 6x135, 6x5.5). Most competitors write marketing copy here; you wrote search copy.^[14]
- The Shopify sitemap is clean and complete.^[14]
- One true search-intent blog post already exists ("How to measure your bolt pattern"). The right instinct — there just need to be thirty more.^[14]

FIX THESE, IN PRIORITY ORDER

#	ISSUE	FIX
1	No social links anywhere on the site	Not a single outbound link to Instagram or Facebook in the homepage, footer or product HTML — the only matches are form-field labels on the ambassador application. ^[14] You lose every visitor who would have followed you. Add icons to header and footer.
2	Organization schema is skeletal	Carries only name and url — no sameAs, no logo, no address, no telephone. ^[14] Populate all four. <code>sameAs</code> pointing at every social profile is the cheapest entity signal Google offers, and it's currently empty.
3	No vehicle fitment landing pages	No Jeep collection and no Toyota collection — while the homepage title tag literally reads "Built for Trucks, Jeeps." ^[14] Build <code>/collections/jeep-wrangler-wheels</code> , <code>/toyota-tacoma-wheels</code> , <code>/ford-f150-wheels</code> , <code>/ram-2500-wheels</code> , each with 200–400 words of unique fitment copy. ^[13] Highest-traffic opportunity on the site.
4	Seven collections return an identical product set	17-inch, 18-inch, 5-lug, 6-lug, chevy-gmc, ford-truck and all-jackman-wheels each return the same 13 wheels. ^[14] Google sees seven near-duplicate pages; a shopper sees a filter that does nothing. Fix the tagging or consolidate and canonicalize.
5	Empty collection page indexed	<code>/collections/accessories</code> has zero products but is live and in the sitemap. ^[14] Populate it or noindex it.
6	Thin blog	Five public articles. ^[14] Aim for two per week: fitment guides, spec explainers, install guides, heritage stories. Link every article to relevant product and collection pages. ^[13]
7	No product reviews	ProductGroup schema is present but there's no AggregateRating, because there are no reviews. ^[14] Star ratings lift click-through meaningfully. ^[13] Install a review app and email every pre-order customer 30 days post-delivery.
8	Image alt text	On the J69 page, 15 images carry alt text that is just the product name repeated and 10 have an empty alt attribute. ^[14] Rewrite with vehicle and fitment context — it feeds Google Images, a real traffic source for wheels.

#	ISSUE	FIX
9	H1 doesn't match the title tag	Product H1 is "J69 Matte Bronze" while the title tag is "J69 Bronze Truck Wheel 17" & 18". ^[14] Bring the H1 in line so the strongest on-page signal carries the keywords.
10	No dealer locator	No "find a dealer" or "where to buy" page anywhere — only sign-up forms. ^[14] Black Rhino sends bio traffic straight to a locator. A searchable locator captures "Jackman wheels near me" and gives every dealer a page to link to.
11	No crossover / spec tables	Publish an HTML fitment table per model — every size, bolt pattern, offset and backspacing. Crawlable spec tables rank for long-tail searches nobody else targets. ^[13] Load rating stays out until it's published — see rule 13.

TWO BRAND-CONTROL ISSUES

- jackmanwheels.shop. A domain under this name is registered (August 2024, expiring 2027) and still appears in Google's index branded "OFFICIAL JACKMAN WHEELS STORE," but it does not resolve — its nameservers refuse the query.^[14] Archived copies show a separate Shopify instance selling a different catalog: vintage VW and spun-aluminium wheels, stickers, patches and koozies, with none of the J69–J73 or Classic 68 line. Not a duplicate-content problem — a question of who controls a domain trading on your brand name. Worth a call with counsel, then either revive it with a redirect or let it lapse deliberately.
- NAP inconsistency. Legal pages give 15500 Cornet St., Santa Fe Springs, CA 90670.^[15] The Facebook page says Austin, TX.^[16] Google uses name/address/phone consistency as a local ranking signal, and conflicting addresses actively suppress local visibility.

TECHNICAL STANDARDS GOING FORWARD

- URLs stay descriptive and shallow: `/collections/toyota-tacoma-wheels`, never a parameter string. Four levels maximum.^[13]
- Faceted filter URLs get `noindex, follow` — paired with canonical tags rather than relying on noindex alone, since Google eventually stops crawling long-term noindexed pages and the link equity decays.^[13]
- Schema sitewide: Organization (fully populated, with sameAs), BreadcrumbList, Product with mpn/sku/brand, AggregateRating once reviews exist, FAQPage on fitment pages.^[13]
- Every blog post links to at least two product pages and one collection. Every collection links to the relevant guides.^[13]
- Watch Core Web Vitals — wheel photography is heavy. Serve WebP, lazy-load below the fold, keep LCP under 2.5 seconds.

LOCAL AND DEALER SEO

- Resolve the address conflict first, then claim and fully complete the Google Business Profile — categories, hours, photos, products, and a post every week.
- Build a "Where to Buy" page plus one page per dealer region. Give each dealer a badge, a link and copy they can paste on their own site — every dealer who uses it is a backlink.
- Get listed in the wheel-and-tire directories and fitment databases the industry uses. Ensure NAP is identical everywhere.
- Pitch the heritage story to off-road and classic-truck media. A California brand coming back is a genuinely good story, and earned editorial links are worth more than anything you can build yourself.

Section 9

FIRST 90 DAYS

One fixed date anchors the near term: Off-Road Expo, 3–4 October, OC Fair & Event Center, Costa Mesa — note the venue moved from Pomona. Everything before it builds toward it; everything after harvests from it.

WINDOW	DO THIS
Days 1–14 to 28 Sep	Rewrite the bio (lead with product). Build vehicle Story Highlights. Verify search-engine indexing is on. Resolve the duplicate Facebook page and claim the vanity URL. Add social links and populated Organization schema to the site. Open TikTok and YouTube. Start following 40 relevant accounts a day. Print #JackmanWheels on box inserts and hang tags. Settle the address question. Run the AT4 batch shoot. Email Nitto, Baja Designs and Skyler House with a specific Collab ask.
Days 15–30 to 14 Oct	Launch the 4-posts-a-week cadence plus daily Stories. Off-Road Expo, 3–4 Oct — shoot every rig that stops, collect handles and written permission on the spot, post to Stories live and roll feed content out over the following fortnight. Publish the first four fitment landing pages. Fix the seven duplicate collections and the empty accessories page. Launch "Build of the Month."
Days 31–60 to 13 Nov	Convert expo contacts into Collab posts, one a week minimum. Install the review app and email pre-order customers. Two blog posts a week. Begin dealer spotlights and ship the first monthly dealer kit. Claim and complete the Google Business Profile. Rewrite image alt text across the catalogue. Second on-vehicle shoot — J72, the expected high mover, currently has no on-vehicle content.
Days 61–90 to 14 Dec	Review 60 days of Insights and override generic posting times with your own data. Double down on the two formats with the highest sends-per-reach. Resolve the .shop domain with counsel. Build the dealer locator. Begin outreach to 5–10 micro-creators in the truck and Jeep space (10K–100K followers — they convert better than macro accounts and cost a set of wheels, not a fee). Turn paid on, using Trial Reel winners as the creative — by now you'll have ten weeks of cold-audience data and won't be guessing.

WHAT TO TRACK, WEEKLY

Five numbers in a spreadsheet every Monday. Look at the trend, not the week.

NUMBER	TODAY	TARGET
Sends per reach	baseline	1%+
Reach from non-followers	~145% of followers	60%+ of reach
Saves per post	baseline	2%+ of reach
Net new followers / week	—	400-800 by month 3
Mentions and tags / week	—	rising
Reel median views	1,100	5,000
Proof posts published	0	12 by 14 Dec
Collabs published	0	9 by 14 Dec

Monthly, add: website sessions from social, organic search sessions, keyword rankings for the fitment pages, and dealer sign-ups. The whole point of social is that it eventually shows up in those four.

IF YOU ONLY DO FIVE THINGS

- 1

Rewrite the bio with real product keywords this week — and take the founding year out of it until §10 is settled.
- 2

Build the four vehicle fitment landing pages. You promise Jeeps in your homepage title and have no Jeep page.
- 3

Put social links and a populated Organization schema on the site.
- 4

Make heritage a weekly pillar — but archive material, not text cards. The only thing here your competitors cannot copy.
- 5

Write every caption for the send, not the like.

OPEN QUESTIONS AND WHERE THE TWO DRAFTS DISAGREED

Section 10

Recorded rather than smoothed over, because each needs a decision from someone other than marketing.

1. THE FOUNDING DATE – NEEDS ONE CONVERSATION

The v2 playbook plants the flag on "Established 1968. Rebirthed 2026." The Instagram bio says 1968 and a grid graphic says EST. 1968. The homepage says "California-born since the 1960s." But the Our Story page places the hand-built wheels in the mid-1970s^[17], and `brand-facts.md` currently records the founding decade as UNRESOLVED.

These may not actually conflict. A company founded in 1968 whose hand-built flame-cut era ran into the mid-1970s is a perfectly coherent history — two different facts that got read as competing founding dates. If that's what happened, 1968 stands, Our Story needs a wording fix, and the strongest positioning in this document is free to use.

What can't stand is the ambiguity. A heritage brand carrying two dates hands a skeptic the easiest possible shot, and it's currently in the first two lines a stranger reads. One conversation with the family settles it. Until then, "California-born" in copy.

2. HERITAGE WEIGHTING – 20% OR 10% ON INSTAGRAM?

The v2 playbook put heritage at 20% and called it the highest save-and-send content you own. The audit put it at 10% and found it already running at 38% of the grid, arguing that vintage material teaches the interest graph to file the account with vintage audiences rather than truck buyers.

Both are right about different material. Original 1960s–80s ads, factory photos and Dave Deal artwork are rare, genuinely archival and send hard. A typeset card that says EST. 1968 is a promo graphic, and it performed like one — 1,597 views against 11.9K. This document splits the difference at 10% on Instagram and 25% on Facebook, restricted to archive-grade material. Revisit once there are six weeks of data on real archival posts.

3. CORRECTIONS APPLIED FROM THE V2 PLAYBOOK

Hashtags: five, not 5–10. Instagram hard-capped posts at five in December 2025 and splitting between caption and comments gains nothing.^[8,9] The earlier guidance was wrong and has been corrected in rule 5.

"Every repost turns an owner into an evangelist" — the mechanic is right and the verb is now wrong. Since 30 April 2026 a repost costs recommendation eligibility.^[19,20] Same outcome, better route: Collab.

4. FOUND BY COMPARING THE TWO DRAFTS

There appear to be two Facebook pages. The v2 audit cited page ID `61560110244171`^[16]; the page actually in use is `61590115023694`. Neither draft caught this alone. A duplicate splits audience, splits reviews and confuses search — and it may also explain the Austin, TX address, if the older page was set up elsewhere. Worth checking before the NAP cleanup, since fixing the address on the wrong page achieves nothing.
